WHEN[®]
CHICKS
COUNT

You already have some experience in running a hatchery, and you know how to program your incubation equipment. However, you would like to take your hatchery's results to the next level. How?

Petersime's Hatchery Management Training provides the answer. During this intensive three-day course, you are offered a broad range of practical advice and tools to improve the quantity and quality of your day-old chicks - and maximize your profit for life.

Training objectives

The Hatchery Management Training is set up for hatchery managers and their assistants that already have some experience with incubators and the hatchery workflow, but want to optimize their hatchery's results.

During the training, ample attention is spent on egg management, logistics and HVAC systems. Participants will be able to significantly improve the bio-security in the hatchery. The training programme also includes courses on how to conduct comparative trials that include advanced hatch breakout sessions, and correctly analyse and interpret the results.

At the end of the programme, all trainees receive the Petersime Hatchery Management Training Certificate.

Training programme

Topics addressed during the training include:

- ▶ Egg management
- ▶ Embryonic development
- ▶ Transfer: hatching triggers
- ▶ Bio-security
- ▶ Hatch problem analysis
- ▶ Advanced hatch breakout sessions
- ▶ Comparative trials
- ▶ Data analysis
- ▶ Heating, ventilation and air conditioning in the hatchery

There is ample room for discussion with your fellow trainees, and our experts are at your service at all times to answer any possible questions.

Practical information

The Hatchery Management Training is organized two times per year at the Customer Centre at the Petersime headquarters, in English. For timings, consult the training calendar on www.petersime.com/services, or contact the Petersime training coordinator: training@petersime.com.
